The seminar illustrates and promotes initiatives to stimulate processes of formal and informal learning for collections, objects and specimens preserved in University Museums.

The two days are an opportunity for comparison of international and national experiences with specific reference to those carried out or underway in the context of University Museums Networks.

As regards the Italian panorama specific attention is devoted to Museums of the thirteen Universities which have constituted the first network of Italian University Museums in a project financed by the Ministry of the University and Research and coordinated by the University of Modena and Reggio Emilia.

Various issues can be related to scientific culture through the use of multimedia technologies to enrich their content and to enhance their communicative efficacy.
